

SAMMY THE CAT:

Sammy was a stray cat who spent his entire life fending for himself. One day, as he stepped out onto the street in search of food, he was sucked under a car driving by. The accident ripped the skin off his entire back leg, leaving him with a huge open wound. The wound soon became infected and filled with maggots. A wonderful woman named Jhanna came to his rescue and got him to a vet where they treated and cleaned his wound and started the healing process. Brave Sammy spent months at the vet because the wound was so severe and infected. The wound is finally fully healed, and Sammy was sent to Medellin for a second medical opinion on his leg, in addition to vaccines and parasite treatment. He has now been in foster for 7+ months and has been waiting for a forever home for over a year now. Sammy has come out of his shell and his extremely loving and highly energetic personality has come shining through. One of the most surprising facts about him is that he is quite obsessed with dogs! He always wants to be around and be playing with them. He is both feline FIV and FeLV negative and suffered no other wounds from his car accident. He is estimated to be around 15 months old (you can tell because he still has a lot of kitten energy!) and he is around 15 lbs. He loves people and other animals, though he much prefers dogs! He has been extremely brave and is deserving of a flight home. Sammy's adoption did fall through with the long wait and we are determined to find him a forever home before the flight day. Even if we don't we have fosters available Stateside to care for him until we find him the most perfect home.
